

The beneficence principle on which must be based any decision relating to a patient who is unable to express his or her wishes.

Alternative spelling: best-interest standard