

A field of inquiry comprising the analysis of ethical issues and moral dilemmas pertaining to the study, classification, and manipulation of biological life, especially human health.