

An economic evaluation consisting of comparing the costs of various options presumed to produce equivalent outcomes and determining the least costly of those options.

Alternate spelling: cost-minimisation analysis