

The deliberate and systematic reduction of funding for a health technology of questionable or comparatively low value.

Note: The funding is often government funding, i.e. subsidisation of the costs of health care.