A scatter diagram in which each point represents a study, relating the estimate of effect and the sample size (or another indicator of the precision of the study).

Note: In the absence of publication bias, the scatter diagram will form an inverted funnel. A hole in the lower left corner of the funnel indicates the presence of publication bias.