

A clinical symptom, risk factor or circumstance for which the use of a particular intervention would be appropriate, as recommended in a clinical practice guideline or protocol of care, or by a regulatory body or other authoritative source.