

An analysis or evaluation of a study with only one branch, i.e. a trial in which there was no parallel comparison group and all the subjects received the same intervention.