

A characteristic of the performance of a diagnostic test, defined as the proportion of persons with a negative test result among persons who do not have the disease; it is calculated as follows: $\text{true negatives} \div (\text{true negatives} + \text{false positives})$.

Related concepts: accuracy, ROC curve and sensitivity