A factor that can have different values.

Note: The values measured in a study are data.