The degree to which evidence is considered relevant to a different population, setting, time or treatment variable.

Note 1: Related concepts include external validity and generalizability.