

Data characterized by large increases in the amount of data, in the accumulation rate, and in the types of data present, requiring novel analytical approaches to manage these features.