

A situation in which the private interests of a person contributing to an assessment influence the quality or the results of the assessment or the accuracy of the data.