

A method for determining the monetary value of an option or clinical outcome by means of surveys in which people are presented with situations and asked what the maximum price is that they would be willing to pay for this option or clinical outcome.

Related concept: willingness to pay