

A measure used in cost-utility analysis to compare programmes, interventions or treatments, expressed as a monetary cost per unit of outcome (effectiveness), adjusted on the basis of quality of life.