

An economic evaluation consisting of comparing various options, in which costs and outcomes are quantified in common monetary units.