

The consideration of the findings from scientific and medical research in the decision-making process.

Syn.: evidence-informed decision making