A calculation, for values of the variable lying outside the series of observed variables, the values of an empirically known function and, by extension, the resulting prediction, deduction, forecasting, transposition or projection.