

An assessment of a community's health needs and the use of this information to set priorities and plan health care delivery and services.