

A knowledge-transfer activity in which a third party liaises between researchers and research users to facilitate networking and information exchange, diffusion of innovation and mutual support.