

An observed value that is so different from the other observation values as to lead one to suspect that an error has been made or that chance has played a part.