

A method of obtaining a representative sample of a population.