A process whereby a document is sent to expert editors and reviewers who are specialists in the field, methodological specialists or users.