

A type of research that does not produce original data, but that involves the qualitative or quantitative synthesis of information from multiple original studies.

Note: Literature reviews, meta-analyses, decision analyses and consensus reports are examples of synthesis research.

Syn. : synthetic study.