

The classification of the severity of a disease in stages on the basis of the signs and symptoms and the paraclinical tests.