

A population studied in a particular location over a specified period of time.