In a systematic review of studies on diagnostic or screening tests, a graphical depiction of the relationship between the true positive ratio (sensitivity) and the false positive ratio (1 - specificity) in all of the individual studies on a given test.

Note: A regression line can be fitted through these points.