

The probability that the health of a patient changes from one state to another within a given period.